Please-Please-Please do NOT change the cellphone use on aircraft.
There would be oughtright war if everyone on board could receive or make calls in flight. Terrorism risk could be increased, but there would be enough discent from the flying public, that airlines would soon loose customers because of the intrusion on privacy. Calling once on the ground or equiping planes with call centers is a better choice than giving everyone the right to call. Just think of teenagers and phones in the air.....!
